

Saturn in Pisces and Aries in 2025

Saturn in Pisces – Surrender gracefully and do not take the widespread dissolution of the social fabric and the economy personally. Focus to adapt patiently and prepare for Saturn in Aries!

Saturn in Aries: Focus to determine a clear direction and work with a strategic plan to enter new territory somehow and or to take different approaches.

2025 begins with Saturn direct and at 14 Pisces 31. Having turned direct on November 15, 2024 by May 24, 2025 it will enter Aries, if only briefly before turning retrograde again on July 13, 2025 at 1 Aries 56, and it will then re-enter Pisces on September 1, 2025. Saturn will then retreat back to 25 Pisces 09 by November 27, 2025 when it turns Direct again and then will re-enter Aries on February 14, 2026, where it will remain by transit until April 13, 2028! So, for the 18-months that the Lunar North Node is in Pisces, Saturn will also be in both signs for about half the time, which equates to about 9 months each! So, Saturn will be in Aries towards the end of the Lunar Node Cycle.

These technical details and their implications will not be commonly applied or understood; however, you can play Astrologer and see if you have any angles or planets near this degree or in Pisces or Aries.

Elaboration of Saturn in Pisces

Saturn is considered the planet of karma and Pisces is also the reservoir sign of accumulated karmas. When combined, the theme of karma is increased. So, Saturn in Pisces symbolizes what often manifests as karmic returns, often in the way of apathy and lack of direction. Commonly, if located in the Birth Chart, it indicates an absent parent, usually father, but sometimes mother, if father played the more maternal role, or the absence was less physical and simply a factor of relative mental and emotional neglect. Saturn in Pisces is not dynamic in the outer sense, often associated with various modes of disintegration, both personally and collectively, and can be understood as marking periods that often amount to people feeling lost and confused.

Some examples since Saturn entered Pisces in early March 2023 include the fact that many longstanding business and brands with household names either downsized or went bankrupt altogether, the opioid crisis and homelessness escalated dramatically, the economy has progressively slipped into a deep recession, and issues with open borders in the USA have flooded the country with illegal immigrants.

In a general sense, this cycle is effectively synchronizing with themes of dissolve, delete and disintegrate associated with many of the structures that we have all come to generally rely upon, understand and trust. In this regard, many of the established structures of society will melt away and make way for a whole new set of norms that will especially begin in spring 2025 when Saturn enters Aries.

While there is a lot to say about Saturn in Pisces and the approximate 2.5-year cycle it implies, and I will bring more attention to it in the coming months, the simple message for now is as follows: Prepare for a time period that could prove to be deep, mysterious, mystical and what can be described as a transcendental time and, at worst, may prove disintegrating, confusing and could lead to feelings of despair and meaninglessness. These themes have been further amplified by Neptune in Pisces, where it has been since 2011. The key has been and continues to be embracing an attitude of acceptance and patient surrender, on one hand, and to make loss and dissolution 'work' for you, on the other.

Elaboration of Saturn in Aries

Saturn in Aries in 2025 will be brief. It begins on May 25, advances to almost 2 Aries and then Saturn turns retrograde on July 12, and re-enters Pisces on September 1st. It will then retreat to 25 Pisces by November 27, station and begin to finally push through Pisces for the last time for this round, the next of which will be almost 30 years later! Saturn will then enter Aries again for its 2.25 year push until entering Taurus on April 14, 2028.

Saturn in Aries can certainly prove dynamic. Like Mars in Cancer, Saturn is generally categorized as a Cardinal planet and Aries is a Cardinal sign, symbolic of action and initiative. The main issue with Saturn in Aries is that it can prove rash, aggressive and poorly directed.

The Role of Mars While Saturn is in Aries

Since Mars rules Aries, it will play an extra special role throughout that 2 year period. In 2025 this includes Leo, Virgo and Libra. In 2026 through mid-April 2028 Mars will transit from revolutionary Aquarius through Sagittarius, thus not completing an entire cycle due to turning retrograde in Virgo and Leo. But that is too far off to emphasize now.
