

Uranus in Taurus and Gemini in 2025

Uranus transits through a sign on an average of 7 years. Yet, it happens to be extra slow in Taurus, true to its slow but sure reputation. While all the far planets in any sign invariably synchronize with major changes, Uranus can prove especially strong, much like Pluto.

Uranus and Pluto together constitute a dynamic evolutionary duo encompassing approximately 140-year cycles. The last time they were conjunct was 1965/66 and they will next align in 2104.

Not surprisingly, the current cycle is directly associated with the gender equality revolution that was sparked strong in the mid-sixties. Remember, the women's liberation movement of that decade. I made a 2-part video about it back in 2018, but it clearly still remains relevant. Here are the links to each part: Part 1 - Part 2

Uranus in 2024

Uranus in Taurus has been our reality since May 2018 and will be through to 2026! For many, it has been and continues to be a difficult transit, economically. Taurus is generally regarded as a challenging sign placement for Uranus, often manifesting as greed and clever schemes. Since that time, the world has and continues to undergo a significant shift of wealth effectively making the very wealthy much wealthier and the poor even more so, while the prosperous middle class has largely paid the bill. Many will attest that this period has been tainted with fraud and grand theft at unprecedented levels and continues even now.

In 2024, Uranus advanced from 19 Taurus 23 to 23 Taurus 18. After months of retrograde motion, it is the last of the far planets to turn direct which it will do on Jan 27, 2024 at 19 Taurus 05. It advanced to 27 Taurus 15 by September 1st, when it again turned retrograde, coinciding with Pluto re-entering Capricorn. This all occurred right in the heat of the US Presidential Election and continues through to July 7, 2025. So, we are hardly free of the ambitious, bullying push of Uranus in Taurus yet.

We will get a sneak preview of Uranus in Gemini beginning on July 7, 2025 where it will remain in the early degrees turning retrograde yet again on September 5 and will re-enter Taurus on November 7, 2025.

Uranus will then re-enter Gemini on April 27, 2026, where it will remain for its approximate 7-year cycle. So, we are still significantly under the influence of it in Taurus, the sign of foundations. Yet, when Uranus enters Gemini, a follow through process associated with the revolutionary internet era will really begin. It will include the implementation of A.I. and a major shift from fiat currencies to digital economies, along with robotics and the 'internet of things' in general, affecting every area of our social lives and invariably that of our economic realities as well.

By the time Uranus enters Cancer for its full transit cycle of about 7 years, which begins in early May 2033, the world will have changed significantly due to Uranus' transit through Gemini to the extent that what we consider normal today will be all but forgotten and a rapidly fading memory. So, get ready for Uranus in Gemini as it makes its debut in summer 2025.
